Factors to consider when choosing the Late French Immersion program:

Some of the attributes that benefit Late Immersion students are:

- ✓ a predisposition for language learning, including strong English skills and maturity
- ✓ strong study skills and work habits
- ✓ a willingness to take risks and enjoy a challenge
- ✓ tolerance for ambiguity, and a good sense of humor.

Other factors may include the student's level of involvement in extra-curricular activities. (For example, does the student have time for this added challenge?) The most important factors, however, are the student's own motivation to learn French, parental support and encouragement, and regular daily attendance.
